

Acknowledgments

There are many people that deserve recognition for making this publication possible. First, I would like to thank Professor Stephen Sachs for his work in making this Symposium a reality. Throughout this year, he has provided invaluable feedback at each step of the planning phase. I would also like to express my gratitude to Kristi Kumpost, our faculty Journal Coordinator, who has been a tremendous source of support this year in all journal matters. Wendy Becker, the Journal's Special Projects Editor, worked tirelessly to put the logistics of the Symposium together. The entire journal's editorial staff also deserves thanks for their diligent efforts on each of these pieces. Last, but certainly not least, I would like to thank Emily Taft, the Journal's Managing Editor, for all of her efforts throughout this year in keeping the Journal running. I could not have asked for a better right-hand person and could not have gotten this done without you.

Signing off,

Kevin Zhao

Editor-in-Chief

Duke Journal of Constitutional Law & Public Policy